What is AI?

Artificial Intelligence, or AI, is when machines, especially computers, show intelligence. It is a part of computer science that makes machines understand their environment and use learning to achieve goals. These smart machines are called AIs.

AI is used in many areas, like web search engines (Google Search), recommendation systems (YouTube, Amazon, Netflix), voice assistants (Google Assistant, Siri, Alexa), self-driving cars (Waymo), and creative tools (ChatGPT, AI art). Sometimes, we don't even notice AI because it becomes a normal part of technology.

The first big researcher in AI was Alan Turing. AI became an official study field in 1956. The field had times of high excitement and times of disappointment, known as "AI winters." Interest in AI grew a lot after 2012 with deep learning, and even more after 2017 with new techniques. This led to an AI boom in the early 2020s, mostly driven by the United States.

In the 21st century, AI is changing society and the economy. It affects jobs, healthcare, government, industry, and education. This raises questions about the long-term effects and ethical issues of AI, leading to talks about safety and regulations.

AI research has different goals like learning, understanding language, and helping robots. One big goal is to make AI as smart as humans. To do this, researchers use many techniques, including search, math, and ideas from psychology and other fields.

1. What does AI stand for?

- A. Artificial Innovation
- B. Artificial Intelligence
- C. Automated Intelligence
- D. Advanced Information

2. What is the main goal of AI in computer science?

- A. To make machines faster.
- B. To make machines use learning to achieve something.
- C. To make machines smaller.
- D. To make machines cheaper.

3. Which of these is NOT mentioned as an AI application in the text?

- A. Google Search
- B. Self-driving cars
- C. Weather forecasting
- D. Voice assistants

4. Who was the first big researcher in AI?

- A. Bill Gates
- B. Google
- C. Alan Turing
- D. The United States of America

5. When did AI become an official field of study?
 - A. 1956
 - B. 2012
 - C. 2017
 - D. 2020

6. What are “AI winters”?
 - A. Times when AI research stopped completely.
 - B. Times when AI research was facing times of disappointment.
 - C. Times when AI was used to predict winter weather.
 - D. Times when AI was disappointed.

7. When did interest in AI grow significantly?
 - A. After 1956
 - B. After 2012
 - C. After 2017
 - D. After 2020

8. Which country led the AI boom in the early 2020s?
 - A. China
 - B. Japan
 - C. America
 - D. Germany

9. What are some areas affected by AI in the 21st century?
 - A. Agriculture and mining
 - B. Sports and entertainment
 - C. Healthcare and education
 - D. Travel and tourism

10. Why is there a need for talks about AI safety and regulations?
 - A. Because AI became a normal part of technology.
 - B. Because AI can raise some ethical issues.
 - C. Because AI is not effective.
 - D. Because AI is used in not so many areas.

A Day at the Park

Yesterday was a sunny day, so I decided to go to the park. I woke up early, ate breakfast, and packed a small bag. I put in a bottle of water, a sandwich, an apple, and my favourite book.

When I arrived at the park, I saw many people. Some were jogging, others were walking their dogs, and some were sitting on benches, talking with friends. I found a nice spot under a big tree and spread out a blanket.

First, I ate my sandwich and drank some water. Then, I started to read my book. It was very quiet and peaceful. Birds were singing in the trees, and I could hear children laughing and playing nearby. After reading for a while, I decided to take a walk.

I walked around the park and saw beautiful flowers and tall trees. There was a small pond with ducks swimming in it. I sat by the pond and watched the ducks for a bit. One of them came very close, hoping for some food.

After my walk, I went back to my blanket and took a short nap. When I woke up, the sun was starting to go down. I packed my things and walked home, feeling happy and relaxed. It was a wonderful day at the park, and I can't wait to go back again.
